“Limo Lift”

U.S. Army National Guardsman Jordan Hoyt received a limo ride home after arriving at Lambert.

Injured Army Soldier Jordan Hoyt arrived at Lambert Tuesday to a crowd of supporters that included his family, television news crews and local Patriot Guard Riders. The bigger surprise was the Limo ride waiting outside to take him and his wife back home near Quincy, Illinois. The Patriot Guard Riders from Missouri and Illinois provided a full escort along the way. The National Guard soldier was wounded in Afghanistan and had been recovering at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C. Hoyt will return to the hospital in about a month to continue rehabilitation.
