

Photo of the Week

Lambert-St. Louis International Airport®

Jan. 29, 2010

“Airport Reads”

Passengers browse for magazines before boarding at Lambert.

In the era of electronics, the printed word still has a lot of staying power especially when you're about to board a flight. Lambert passengers are avid readers. At any given time, the Airport's Paradise Shops have a crowd browsing for New York Times Best Sellers, inspirational books and of course, magazines. Books and magazines account for 25 percent of all retail store sales at Lambert. Airport shops offer more than 180 different magazines and hundreds of book titles. If you read fast, you can return any books back to the store and get a 50% refund. The Read and Return program is a big hit. Check it out the next time you visit.

®

©2010 Lambert-St. Louis International Airport · Public Information Office