

Photo of the Week

Lambert-St. Louis International Airport®

Jan. 8, 2010

“Freeze Week”

Lambert passengers brave cold and gusty winds the morning after a snowstorm cleared St. Louis.

The new decade has begun with some of the coldest temperatures in...a decade. It's been freeze week at Lambert with a few inches of snow mixed into the "misery mix." St. Louis and the entire Midwest region have experienced temperatures hovering in the single digits with wind chills diving well below zero. The conditions are tough on travelers and even more difficult for airport and airline workers who must weather the worst of it to keep runways cleared and flights on schedule.

®

©2010 Lambert-St. Louis International Airport · Public Information Office